These participants rely on the strength of their multiemployer pension plan for their future retirement security.

These employers provide the jobs that are the lifeline of local economies. Bipartisan pension legislation would provide relief to these employers from increasing liabilities that are putting jobs at risk.

These contributions help ensure that Central States participants, including Wyoming constituents, will have adequate income in retirement.

Research shows that retirement benefits strengthen local businesses and economies by encouraging economic activity, leading to higher incomes for workers and more jobs created by local employers.

On average, each retiree pays $1,148 in federal tax revenue every year on their benefits.

The loss of this retirement income to Wyoming constituents may result in reduced economic activity, weakened local businesses, lower incomes for workers and fewer jobs.
